Gansevoort Market
353 West 14th Street
New York, NY 10014

Historic Gansevoort Market

In 1884, The Gansevoort "Farmers" Market named after Revolutionary War figure Peter Gansevoort, opened the first open-air produce market for buying and selling regional produce on the site of the former Fort Gansevoort location. In 1887, meat, poultry and dairy products were added and the market was relocated to what is currently Gansevoort Street and renamed the Gansevoort Market.

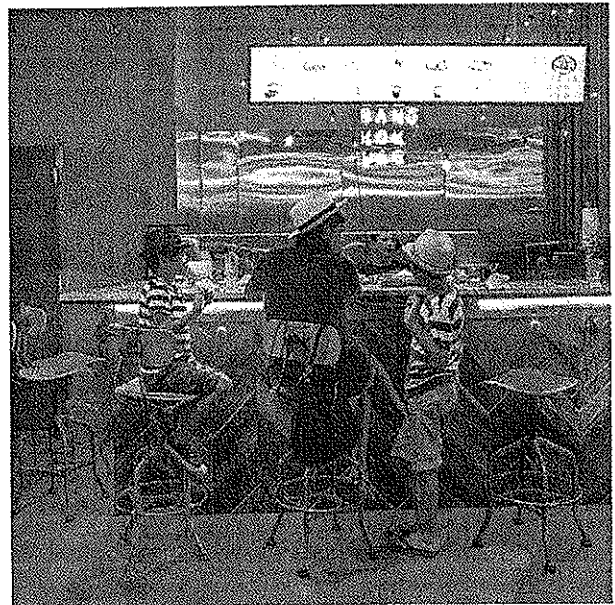

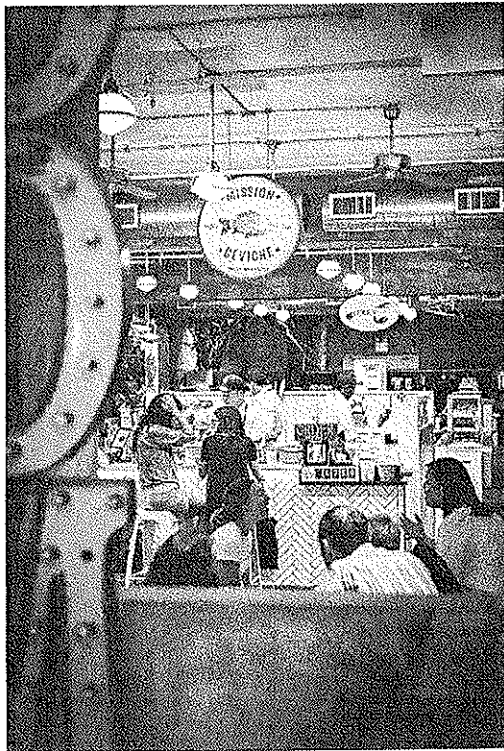

The Market created a bustling and lively scene, Harper's Weekly described the spectacle in 1888: "During the dark hours of early morning, as hundreds of wagons of all descriptions converge upon the market, pandemonium reigns as traffic chokes the thoroughfares for blocks around."

Today's Gansevoort Market

The Gansevoort Market personifies old New York – offering a curated selection of locally produced goods and fare. The industrial inspired architecture brings together the history of the market while creating a modern communal space to eat, entertain and relax.

Gansevoort Hall

Gansevoort Hall is a 1,500 square foot bar concept located in the back of Gansevoort Market. Offering a craft beer selection with a heavy focus on product from the 5 boroughs, Long Island and the Hudson Valley as well as local wine and artisanal sprits from New York. The bar will feature 12 draft lines allowing for 10 beers on tap and 2 cocktails.

The Gansevoort Hall presents a feeling of enjoying a beverage outside with communal picnic tables and a skylight located directly above the seating area.

It's fresh. It's French.
Made with lots of love,
passion and 'savoir-faire'!

At The French Block we are proud to serve freshly roasted coffee sourced from local producers in Brazil, Colombia, Ethiopia, Guatemala, Mexico and Rwanda. Whether you like a simple and single espresso, enjoy the creaminess of a cappuccino, or prefer a cold brew we have it all.

And because it wouldn't be truly French without a croissant, we also prepare fresh croissants and 'pains au chocolat' for you to indulge with your morning cup of coffee. For the inner Parisian in you!
